The Captain's Umbrella.

Captain Fortescue danced for the best part one happy evening with the prettiest girl of the season. And the gallant captain fell despefately in love with her. He went home in the bright mistiness of an early summer morning in a high fever of excitement, for he believed that Miss Bracegirdle viewed him with considerable favor.

The next afternoon he went to call on her. She seemed to him even more beautiful in the daylight and a simple dress; he became momentarily more and more in love. And now he fancied that not only Miss Bracegirdle, but her mother, regarded him with kindly eyes. In that case he had but to go in and win. He resolved so to do, and left the house so full of his passion and his thoughts that he forgot—his umbrella. This was no unusual circumstance. Captain Fortescue was given to forgetting his umbrella, and leaving it in a handsome cab or any other convenient place. Thus it happened that this which he had now left was the only one he possessed. The next day he knew Miss Bracegirdle was going to an afternoon fete at the Botanical Gardens. He intended to meet her there. But it was showery, thunderous weather, and he felt that to visit the Botanical Gardens without an umbrella would be dangerous and difficult. Besides, an umbrella is often admiralby useful during the progress of a love affair.

He had learned by accident that the Bracegirdles were going out shopping in the morning. He determined, therefore, to call and ask the housemaid to give him his umbrella. This seemed exceedingly simple, but luck was against Captain Fortescue. The maid who admitted him on the day before had this very morning departed in a four-wheeled cab with two boxes on the top of it, her "month" being "up." A new maid had taken her place—one of a less smiling disposition than the last.

"I called here yesterday afternoon," said the captain, "and left my umbrella; will you let me have it?"

Something in the sternness of the eyes which were upon him made him falter before he had said the last word of his requests; it suddenly occurred to him that he might find it a little difficult to prove that the umbrella in question was indeed his own.

"No, thank you," said the maid. "I've had enough of that at my last place. I'm not going to get into trouble here. Better take to an honest trade, young man." With which piece of advice she shut the door in Captain Fortescue's face, leaving the officer astonished, quenched and crest-fallen. He went straightway and bought a new umbrella. Armed with this, and admirably attired in other respects, he went to the Botanical Gardens, where he met Miss Bracegirdle, who seemed more beautiful, more charming and more graceful than ever.

As soon as it seemed at all decent he called again, feeling very contented with himself and his fate. But when he asked whether Mrs. Bracegirdle was at home and the stern maid eyed him for a silent awful instant, his spirits fell strangely.

"She is not," said the maid, and shut the door with an abruptness that gave him a singularly disconsolate feeling.

When, about an hour later, the ladies came in and the maid brought them some tea, she said to Mrs. Bracegirdle: "If you please, ma'am, that young man has been here again who came one day with the umbrella dogde. He asked if you were at home—of course he knew you were not—and I suppose he had some plan for getting into the house, but I shut the door in his face and would not listen."

"That's right, Eliza," said Mrs. Bracegirdle, "never give them a chance to go inside the hall. There's been to much of that stealing of coats and umbrellas in this neighborhood; it never would happen with a sensible housemaid. Master Harry leaves his things hanging in the hall, so that it would be quite easy to carry off a coat or umbrella, if you left the man there alone for a minute. If he is so impudent as to come again, the moment you see who it is shut the door."

The next afternoon was Mrs. Bracegirdle's "day at home." Capt. Fortescue had not intended to go then; he wanted the lovely Miss Bracegirdle to himself, not surrounded by a crowd of admirers. But as he had not been able to see her the day before, he determined to brave the crowd, and be content if he got but one smile all his own. And so he presented himself once more at Mrs. Bracegirdle's door, this time knowing her to be within. But when it was opened and he confidently framthe phrase, not as a query, but an assertion, "Mrs. Bracegirdle at home?" and proposed immediately to enter the maid said shortly, "No, she is not," and quickly shut the door upon him.

No words can describe his feelings. He stared blankly at the handsome door, well shut and firm, that suddenly had closed upon him and separated him from his love. What could this awful thing mean? Had Mrs. Bracegirdle heard something—false, of course and uttered by some other base admirer of her daughter—which had made her take this cruel step? It was impossible to guess. It was impossible to knock again and ask; it was ridiculous to stand staring at the door. He turned to descend the steps and walked down the street.

Before he had gone half way he met a hated rival, a very fine fellow, whom he had only begun to hate in the last three or four days, since he had noticed that Miss Bracegirdle sometimes gave him very charming and encouraging glances. Captain Fortescue walked on slowly and listened for the confident rat-a-tat-tat of his rival. He heard it, listened and looked back. The door opened and the visitor instantly admitted.

The unhappy man who had been turned away from the same entrance, sighed heavily and went away down the sunny street, hanging his head. He told himself that it would be only a fool of a madman who could pretend to misunderstand so plain a refusal as this. Perhaps it was meant kindly, he thought, and groaned at the thought. Miss Bracegirdle was no coquette, and did not care to have men offer her their love when she had no intention of accepting it. He was so desperately enamored of her that he busied himself in trying to see this cruel cut as a kind deed. His hopes were gone; but he could not bear so suddenly to lose his idol. He determined he would not worry her by his unwelcome presence where she could not easily avoid him, nor permit himself to be laughed at by his successful rival. So he excused himself from certain engagements at houses where he knew he should meet her. He gave up dancing and took to cards instead.

"Mamma," said Miss Bracegirdle one day, "doesn't it seem odd that for three weeks Capt. Fortescue has not called?"

"It does," said Mrs. Bracegirdle; "and yet, when I come to think of it, we have not met him out anywhere, either. He must be ill, or more likely he has gone out of town. He will call when he comes back."

This she said, noting that her daughter looked a little pale and out of sorts. But, secretly she was uneasy herself. Capt. Fortescue had shown signs of being so hot a wooer that it seemed very improbable he would leave town without a word to them. At the next opportunity she quietly made some inquiries about him, and learned that Capt. Fortescue was neither ill nor out of town. This was bad news indeed; for Mrs. Bracegirdle knew perfectly well that her daughter's heart was seriously touched; and, as Capt. Fortescue was perfectly "eligible," all had promised fairly. Now that fair promise was destroyed. There was nothing to be done except try, by other distractions, to erase the impression which Captain Fortescue had made. Mrs. Bracegidle devoted herself to the daughter more tenderly than ever, and the girl understood her.

Amid all the gayety and the many engagements which came with every day, there was a melancholy about the house which had never been there before. It was impossible for them to banish it altogether. Even Master Harry, a cheerful youth of 14, became aware of it at last, and declared his sister was not "half as jolly as she used to be." One day when his mother and sister were taking a quiet half hour before dressing for dinner, he came into the room carrying an umbrella.

"I say, mother, this umbrella's been in the stand for a month. The fellow it belonged to has forgotten all about it, I expect; don't you think I might have it?"

"Isn't it yours?" said Mrs. Bracegirdle. "I gave you a silver-handled one last year."

"Oh, I lost that long ago," replied the youth coolly, "and I may as well have this instead. It's like mine, but ever so much more sweller. There's a name engraved on it; I can have that scratched out."

"Let me see the name," said Mrs. Bracegirdle. She took it and read "Fortescue."

An odd look came over her face. She said nothing for a moment, but seemed plunged in thought; then she arose and went down stairs to the dining room. She rang the bell, and the stern-eyed maid appeared.

"Eliza," she said, "can you remember the appearance of that young man who came one day and asked for an umbrella? He came twice, I think you said, and asked for me the second time. Will you describe him if you can?"

"He was quite a gentleman to look at, ma'am," said Eliza; "but this sort mostly are. Tall and broad-shouldered, and military looking, with blue eyes, very short fair hair, and a long, heavy fair moustache."

"That will do Eliza," said Mrs. Bracegirdle, "you can go."

As soon as Eliza had left the room, Mrs. Bracegirdle, sat down and wrote a note. Then she tore it up and wrote another, which was merely an informal invitation to lunch the next day.

The she called Harry down to her.

"Harry," she said, "I want you to go to Captain Fortescue's rooms, and take this note and the umbrella. See him if you possibly can and try to explain about this unhappy umbrella and that wretched, stupid Eliza."

Then she told Master Harry the story at which he laughed immensely.

"Now, you must not laugh, but think how you can do the thing nicely, Harry. You can manage it admirably if you choose. It is too absurd to put on paper. And make Captain Fortescue promise to come to lunch, just to show he bears no malice."

Harry put on his best manners, and accomplished his task well, though he felt much aggrieved at having to give up the umbrella. Captain Fortescue came to lunch, and this time Eliza admitted him, and blushed as she did so.

A Hard Run of Luck.

John Kelly has a run of bad luck in appearing so often before Democratic national conventions in opposition to the candidate of his state. Each time the man preferred by the rest of the New York Democracy is the only man who does not suit Mr. Kelly and his associates. When he appeared before the last conventions at St. Louis and Cincinnati demanding any one but Tilden, there was room for the belief that he was sincere persuaded that Tilden would make a bad candidate, and there were a good many Democrats throughout the country who were in sympathy with that belief. But when New York selects a new candidate, who is again particularly obnoxious to Mr. Kelly, there is good cause for the suspicion that Mr. Kelly is a hard man to please with a presidential candidate from his own state, and that in fact no one will suit him whom he does not think he can control. Cleveland's independence and lack of allegiance to Tammany Hall, is probably the real reason for its leader's antipathy to him and will as well account for the antagonistic votes he has found in the New York delegation from other parts of this state. The delegates look more to their interests than to that of the party in the state, and prefer a candidate from outside the state, rather than one of their own citizens who will not be likely in the presidential office to hold them at their own estimate of themselves and reward them accordingly.—Lancaster Intelligencer.

A Bold and Strong Nomination.

(From the N. Y., Commercial Advertiser, rep.)

In nominating Mr. Cleveland the Democratic party has done a bold thing, but whether their courage is the courage of discretion it would be premature to say. Mr. Cleveland will prove a strong candidate, but will meet with strong opposition. In making Governor Cleveland their candidate his party has been deaf to the mandate of the self-seeking politicians in whose path the Governor has stood 'like a stone wall' and has made an affective appeal for the independent vote of the country.

Eating Before Sleeping.

"Go home and eat a good supper, that's all the medicine you want," and the medical gentleman to whom a reporter had gone for a nervine, a sedative or sleeping potion opened the door to show him out.

"But, doctor, it's 11 o'clock at night!"

"Well, what of it? Oh, I see. The popular prejudice against eating at night. Let me tell you, my young friend, that unless your stomach is out of order, it is more benefit to you to eat before going to bed than it is harmful. Food of a simple kind induces sleep. At what hour did you dine?"

"Six o'clock."

"Humph! Just what I thought. Six o'clock. Fourteen hours between dinner and your breakfast. Enough to keep any man awake. By that time the fuel necessary to send the blood coursing through your system is burned out. Animals sleep instinctly after meals. Human beings become drowsy after eating. Why? Simply because the juises needed in digestion are supplied by the blood being solicited toward the stomach. Thus the brain receives less blood than during the hours of fasting, and becoming paler the powers grow dormant. Invalids and those in delicate health should always eat before going to bed. The sinking sensation in sleeplessness is a call for food. Wakefulness is oftentimes merely a symtom of hunger. Gratify the desire and sleep ensues. The feeble will be stronger if they eat on going to bed. Some persons are exhausted merely by the process of making their toilet in the morning. A cup of warm milk and toast on retiring or of beef tea on awakening will correct it."

"But is it not essential that the stomach should rest?"

"Undoubtedly. Yet, when hungry we should eat. Does the infant's stomach rest as long as the adult's? Man eats less often only because his food requires more time for digestion. Invalids and children at night may take slowly warm milk, beef-tea or oat-meal. The vigorous adult can eat bread, milk, cold beef, chicken, raw oysters or other such food. Of course, it must be taken in moderation. You start home now and take a cup of tea and a beef sandwich on the way, and I'll risk your sleeping. Good night!"

A Clergyman for Cleveland.

He Forcibly Tells The Reason Why.

Rev. Augustus Blauvelt writes as follows:

I venture the prediction that the vast majority of us Independent voters, nominally Republicans, will steadily adhere to our present resolution not to vote for Blaine. It is perfectly futile to endeavor either to divert us or to delude us by giving out that the protection of American industry by a tariff is the great question of the present campaign. So far as the financial prosperity of the country is a leading issue of this Presidential contest, the issue is to be met in either way rather than by a tariff. In other words, the security of American finances, both private and public, just now far more depends upon protection from domestic dishonesty than upon protection from foreign competition. In private affairs the methods of a Ward replete the resources of the people by the millions. In municipal affairs the methods of a Tweed, long enough endured, would bankrupt the metropolis itself. In national affairs the reputed methods of a Blaine—well, let us at least see to it that the next President of the United States is reputed to be an honest man. And so far as up to this time any facts have come to light, any suspicious have been promulgated, Grover Cleveland is this honest man, if nothing more. In plain terms, it would be purely gratutious to entertain the remotest suspicion that, in connection with the corporations and monopolies and political adventures and governmental parasites of the country, such a President as Grover Cleveland would make could by any possibility become one of the most engulfing forces of a sort of moral financial maelstrom for the earnings of American industry, the profits of American traffic, the incomes of American investments.

A Wicked Deacon.

They have managed to keep up with the times at Far Rockaway, Long Island, all along, in a general way, but lately they have fallen in the rear in the matter of church scandals. The Methodists of the town have at last awakened, however, and come out of their devotional lethargy to prove that they are of this ara. Two of the leading members of the church are John Henry Abrams, keeper of a general store at the railroad depot, and Henry Cornell, his wife's brother, who is a master of a vessel at Rockaway Bay and a farmer in the vicinity. Their church is at Westville, in the town of Hempstead. Cornell, the rough old sea dog, has a rough, salty way of criticising the saints and a method of running a church on ship discipline that is not popular among the landsmen. He has been especially severe on hypocrisy, and in his outspoken, brusque way has made several of the loudest shouters at the experience meetings hang their heads. It was agreed that the Captain should be sat upon and gagged to prevent him giving away church affairs indiscriminately, but there was no one who volunteered to undertake the sedentary task; so he went his wild way. At last the sea dog fell afoil of his brother-in-law. He went one day to a neighboring farmer named James Hicks, who has a pretty wife, (at least so Abrams alleges in a complaint he has sworn to lately), and 'put the deyil in his head.'

The Captain remarked, artfully:

'Hicks, do you know that fellow Abrams? He ain't no Christian, though he pretends to be, and I tell you because you ought to know it.'

'Why ain't he a Christian?' asked Hicks, pricking up his ears.

'Why, do you remember the revival meeting in 1883?' continued Cornell.

'I do; but what have they got to do with it?'

'Well, then, your wife was dead gone on the revival with the rest of them, and—'

'Well, go on. What occured?' asked the husband.

'My,' continued Cornell, 'I watched him at one of these meetings and kept my eye on the lady, too. He got down on his knees and covered his face with his hands and prayed like sun, but all the time he was peekin' through his fingers and winkin' at the lady.'

'What! Winkin' at her?'

'Yes, and pretty soon she got up and went out, and pretty soon he got up and followed her and they were seen walkin' together and—'

'See here, Cap'n Henry, do you want to say it was my wife he winked at?' exclaimed the furious farmer.

'I don't say nothin'—I only tell facts,' said the cunning old sea dog. 'But I'll say that your wife went out of meetin' just about that time, too.'

This raised a 'circus' such as Rockaway had not seen in years. The angry Hicks went for Abrams, and the gossips of religous circles took up the story and made it so hot, that Rockaway became Hades for the parties concerned.

A Sunday-school teacher, says an exchange, had grown eloquent in picturing to his little pupils the beauties of Heaven, and he finally asked: 'What kind of little boys go to Heaven?' A lively little four-year-old boy, with kicking boots, flourished his fist. 'Well, you may answer,' said his teacher. 'Dead ones' shouted the little fellow, at the extent of his lungs.

Mr. Blank: Have the buttons put on a pair of No. sixes.

Some Mexican Superstitions.

Not long ago, in one of the frontier towns of Mexico, a man shot a defenseless old woman down in the street in broad daylight. He was captured with his carbine in his hand and when examined before the magistrate gave as reason for his crime that the murdered woman had been called upon to nurse his brother, who was sick, and had, by working charms upon him, caused his death. The firm belief in phantoms is taken advantage of by evil disposed persons, who, disguised as women, glide about the suburbs secured from molestation by any passers-by. These phantoms haunt graveyards, and grown men will gravely tell you of 'phantasmus,' as they call them, seen near or at the spot where men have been murdered. These generally bear the form of men lying dead, weltering in their blood. Those that recount you these tales affect not to believe in the existence of spirits, but one can see that although, like Mme. de Stael, not believing in ghosts, they are afraid of them all the same.

At Pueblo a man went before one of the judges and asked protection from a discarded sweetheart who, he declared, had made an image the exact representation of him, and which was carefully dressed in clothes like those he wore, and that she stuck pins in the arms and legs of this puppet, which act caused him the most awful tortures, fearful pains shooting through the portions of body corresponding to those in which the pins were stuck on the puppet. He had dragged to court the woman, and actually bore the puppet in his hand as proof of what he said. He proposed to destroy this uncomfortable pirated edition of himself, and only asked that the judge would prevent the woman from making another one.

The superstitions, of course, give rise to a considerable traffic in charms, in which may be found a curious intermixture in religious belief. A thief, for instance, will carry as a charm against detection some curious verses addressed to the patron saint of his guild. Love powders and portions are often used, and sundry old men and women yelped 'curanderos' make a living as doctors, practicing a curious medicine and necromacy. It is not so long ago, in an interior city, that one of the old women smothered herself and patient, a tax collector of some intelligence, to death in an improvised Russian bath, in which she raised a mephitic vapor of certain herbs for the purpose of driving out a witch that inhabited the body of her patient. The fact that she herself perished shows that she believed in ghosts and thought she could not conquer them. Before entering the bath she told her attendant to pay no attention to any cries from within, as the witch would probably make a great disturbance before allowing herself to be dislodged.

Democratic Nominations for Fifty Years.

The nominations made by the Democratic Conventions within the last fifty years are as follows:

1836. Martin Van Buren, 1st ballot.
1840, Martin Van Buren, unanimously.
1844, James K. Polk, 9th ballot.
1848, Lewis Cass, 4th ballot.
1852, Franklin Pierce, 49th ballot.
1856, James Buchanan, 17th ballot.
1860, John C. Breckenridge, 56th ballot.
1864, George B. McClellan, 1st ballot.
1868, Horatio Seymour, 23d ballot.
1872, Horace Greely, endorsed.
1876, Samuel J. Tilden, 2d ballot.
1880, Winfield S. Hancock, 2d ballot.
1884, Grover Cleveland, 2d ballot.

The 1860 convention that nominated Breckenridge balloted fifty-five times at Charlston, S. C., then adjourned to Baltimore, June 18, when Breckenridge was unanimously nominated on the first ballot. The "bolters" met the same day and nominated Stephen A. Douglas on the first ballot.

In 1852 Franklin Pierce's name first appeared on the thirty-fifth ballot, when Virginia gave him her fifteen votes. Lewis Cass and James Buchanan were the leading candidates on most of the forty-five ballots, but at no time did either have a majority even of the convention, while a two-thirds vote was required to nominate.

"Broken English" recites the story of a Frenchman, M. Dubois, who complained to an Edglish friend: "I am going to leave my hotel. I paid my bill yesterday, and I said to the landlord, 'Do I owe anything else?' He said, 'You are square.' 'What am I?' He said again, 'You are square.' 'That is strange,' said I. 'I lived so long I never knew I was square before.' Then as I was going away he shook me by the hand, saying, 'I hope you'll be round soon.' I said, 'I thought you said I was square. Now you hope I'll be round.' He laughed and said, 'When I tell you you'll be round, I mean you won't be long.' I did not know how many forms he wished me to assume."

A Bachelor President just as good as a Married President.

Blaine organs after looking around in vain for something to say against Governor Cleveland, gravely object that he is a bachelor. This makes the New York favorite the more available for the work he will be called upon to perform. President Cleveland will have a monstrous job on hand, with hardly any time left to devote to a Mrs. President Cleveland. He will be elected as a working President, and the work of Reform is what lies before him. In short he will be too busy to keep regular hours. Every spare moment of his time will be taken up in catching Treasury thieves and bringing to account the ringsters. He will be like a boss carpenter erecting a new administratien building, giving commands here and there to his assistants, and until the frame work is made solid and a substancial roof put on, he will have no time for anything else, and a Mrs. Cleveland would of necessity be neglected.

But when the time comes for the finishing touches of the building, then President Cleveland can be looking around. The country will be in a prosperous condition and Cleveland can rest on his laurels and look for a wife.

—THERE is more personal magnetism in a straight-forward, old-fashioned honest man than there is in an entire regiment of "plumed knights."

The Earthquake on Sunday.

On Sunday afternoon at about two o'clock an earthquake occurred which shook up many towns of Pennsylvania as well as New York City and extended up into Maine. At Harrisburg, Lancaster, Reading, Easton and many other places in this State the shock was perceptibly felt, upsetting furniture, dishes and dropping blinds. People in New York were under the impression that the buildings were about to fall and ran into the streets panic stricken. The reports as to its duration differ, but the average seems to be about ten seconds. No serious damage was done at any place by the eruption.

Blaine in 1881.

(From the Philadelphia POST.)

Mr. Blaine's campaign has run against another snag. A paper in New York, called the Irish World, and edited by Mr. Patrick Ford, has been pretending to support Blaine as the friend of Ireland.

Now come along reprints from the Irish World, edited by the same man, less than three years ago, showing what his opinion was of Blaine when that statesman was dealing with an international question in the matter of the prisoners of Kilmainham.

Upon that occasion the Irish World, in its issue of December 10, 1881, passed this judgement on Blaine and Blaineism:

"Broken in health and threatened with blindness, Mr. Boyton has at length been released from Kilmainham He passes from the prison to the Hospital, there, perhaps, to end his life, the latest victim of British tyranny.

"There is no more painful chapter in the history of our international relations than the one which records how this Union soldier has been allowed to pine in his prison cell week after week without the government for which he risked his life interfering to secnre for him even so much as a trial by jury The Boyton case will ever remain a blot in our history.

"The man who has been guilty of allowing this Union soldier to be imprisoned without trial in a foreign country on a vague suspicion ought to be driven from public life. In this flunkeyism to the English government, James Blaine has refused to protect American citizens whom he was bound by every principal of law to extend protection to. Such a man has no conception of what is due to the honor of the United States, and should never again be placed in a position where he can disgrace our government."

Good then, good now!

The Independents.

The independents have gone to work like a very earnest, sincere and practical body of men, and show a disposition not to pursue one candidate with any venom born of disappointment or bestow upon the other superlative praise to justify their own course, but simply to treat both sides and their pretentions strictly upon their merits. The Independents are in a position to emphasize, even more than the Democrats, the glaring unfitness of the Republican candidate on the point of character alone for the high position to which he aspires. The objections that these men present to the gratification of Blaine's ambition, can not be whisked aside as 'Democratic lies.' They are not manufactured as campaign capital, but have existed so long and so definitely that these men are for the time being, at least, driven from the party with which they have almost always acted. There is one issue, that Blaine, his organs and defenders try to avoid, and that is the very issue which the Independents will press home. Moreover, it is the issue that must be settled before the self-respecting citizens of this country can consider anything else. He may be smart; he may be brilliant; he may be magnetic; but is he honest? The overwhelming testimony of what has already been made public concerning his transactions is to the contrary. He has used high official trust for private gain. He has solicited the recognition that attaches to valuable consideration for certain official acts in the interests of corporations or individuals. He has carried his country to the verge of a broil with a friendly republic in order to advance private claims. As in the case of the Northern Pacific, he has 'kept his eye skinned' for opportunities that he could make special use of as a high official with large authority. All this is not only popularly believed of Blaine, but it is believed by men of the keenest intelligence and most careful methods in both political parties, and upon the strength of extensiye evidence. This belief is strengthened by the pains that he and his supporters are taking, not to demolish it with a stronger counter-evidence, but to laugh it down or ignore it—at all events to dodge it. That is the condition of things that is at the bottom of the Independent movement, and so it becomes more particularly the Independent issue. It is large enough of itself to conduct the campaign to Blaine's defeat. If he is a pure and honest man, then he is one of the most unfortunate. But, in that event, he should not run away from the issue, for it will pursue and have it out with him before the campaign is ended.—Boston Post.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 11, 1884.

'It is my deliberate opinion,' said Senator Edmunds four years ago, 'that Mr. Blaine acts as the attorney for Jay Gould. Whenever Mr. Thurman and I have settled upon legislation to bring the Pacific railroads to terms of equity with the Government, up has jumped James G. Blaine, musket in hand, from behind the breastworks of Gould's lobby, to fire in our back.' And this same James G. Blaine is to-day asking the suffrages of the people whom he has thus wronged, and whose interests he has thus attempted to cripple, for the highest office within their gift! It was before Mr. Edmunds wrote these things, that his record as Speaker of the House had been held up to public view, and his complicity with the Little Rock and other subsidies fully established. The lamentable feature, however, of all this rotten business is the determination of the Blaine following to make a public palliation of his great offences by the declaration that any man placed in like position would under like circumstances do precisely as Mr. Blaine did! So it has come to that point in our estimate of political morals that men in official position are to be justified in prostituting their high prerogative, in the acceptance of any and all pecuniary reward that they may demand for the performance of official duty! How long should we have a country worthy of the respect of the King of Dahomey, or worth living for at all, if such a sentiment as this were to obtain among the people? The election of Mr. Blaine by the people of the United States, they have the direct, explicit, incontrovertible knowledge of his dishonest methods and official delinquencies, will demonstrate to the other nations of the earth that they are willing to put a premium upon practices in official life that make ordinary corruption respectable.

The election of Gov. Cleveland will have the effect of instituting here a true system of civil service in place of the present imcompetent office-holding autocracy, a change that will be hailed with proud satisfaction by everybody who has had anything to do with the department officials here. Twenty-five years of constant office-holding has rendered these fellows as audacious as the devil and infinitely wore arrogant. Servants of the people are they? Let the people come on to Washington and attempt to direct their servants and see how soon they would be disabused of that notion! Why, the people haven't a right in the world that these fellows would respect any more than they would respect the rights of a dray-horse.

Politeness and ordinary decency are conspicuous by their absence in every department, and favoritism, proceeding from partisan considerations, is absolutely the rule. May God help the Government that cannot get along without the assistance of such a mass of incompetency as that now in charge of the great and vital affairs of this nation!

PHONO.

—NO ONE, better than the mothers, knows the amount of persuasion, threatenings and force required to induce the children to take, when necessary, a dose of the nauseating, sickening worm syrups; and no one more highly appreciates the virtues of McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders. So pleasant and easy to take, so effective as a worm destroyer, the dose so small that the children never know that they are taking a medicine. There is nothing in the shape of vermifuge that can compare with them. Don't be deceived. Take no other. Money refunded to dissatisfied buyers.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

Attention, Doctors.

Everybody knows that the life of the average physician is a hard one. He is often compelled to ride great distances through mud and rain for a merely nominal fee. It is not fit nor proper for us to condemn any physician for his work, but we do assert that his practice can be made easier, and he can effect more cures by the proper and judicious use of PERUNA. If he will only add this great remedy to his list of medicines, he will find that his usefulness will be greatly increased. Full direction for its use will be found in the "Ills of Life," and he should at once procure this valuable book.

N. J. Wright, Business Agent Evening Herald, Erie, Pa., says: "DR. HARTMAN—I can not but feel it my duty to express to you my thanks for the great benefit I received from the use of your medicines, PERUNA and MANALIN. One bottle of each placed me square on my feet, after a sickness of four weeks, which confined me to my bed, and then left me lame and crippled. Three days from the commencement of the use of your remedies the cane was dispensed with, and in a week I was perfectly well."

Mrs. Ellen Maynard, Oswego, Potter county, Pa., writes: "DR. HARTMAN, Columbus, O. The small ulcers are all healed, and the two large ones are not more than half as large as they were. I am feeling quite well. The people say your PERUNA and MANALIN are doing a miracle. I do not take nearly so much opium as I did before."

Joseph Thomas, East Brady, Pa., writes: "I have used your PERUNA and MANALIN with good results. In the year of 1880 I was so bad that I could scarcely walk. I used PERUNA and MANALIN, and am now as healthy as I have ever been. I have also recommended it to several parties, and they have been much benefited by it."

Mr. C. H. Harris, New Vienna, Ohio, writes: "Our little girl was paralyzed at thirteen months old, and we resorted to everything we could hear of for relief, but she appeared to get but little better. Hearing of PERUNA we concluded to try it, and will say it has done her a great deal of good—the first bottle apparently giving aid and relief. We have used it for nervousness in other cases on other persons and found it a success. For general debility, and in fact for any disease, we don't think anything else can at all compare with it. We have used forty or fifty bottles, and our house is never without PERUNA. Our little girl is now eight years old, and can run any place, was for four years helpless. PERUNA cured her."

AT A MEETING OF THE MEMBERS OF THE BAR of Centre county the following order was made:

And now, July 25, 1884, the members of the Bar having continued the entire civil list of causes for the second week of August Term, it is ordered that the second week of said term be dispensed with, and that there be holden but one week of the several courts of, in and for the county of Centre at August term next, and it is further ordered that the Prothonotary publish this order in the several papers of the county, and that the Sheriff of Centre county will summon no more jurors for said second week, and that he notify them already summoned not to appear.

All summer goods such as Light Shawls, Lap Robes, Fine Lawns and many other articles too numerous to mention sold AT COST.

A full line of Rubber Goods just received, which will positivily be sold at the very lowest market figures.

We carry a full line of Canned Fruit which we are selling off at ROCK BOTTOM PRICES.

During this pleasant season we have always a full supply of Fresh Green Groceries, such as cabbage, Tomatoes, Melons, Roasting Ears, Peaches. Apples, etc.

We can also accommodate customers with good Country Lard, Sugar Cured Hams and splendid Shoulders.

Pure Apple Juice Vinegar just received from New York. The best made.

Remember—Country Produce buys goods just as cheap as cash and we always pay the highest home market prices for produce.

The question arises, "Why we are selling goods so low?" We answer—First, because we bought the stock at a figure which enables us to sell low and still have a reasonable profit. Secondly, we want to make room for an immense fall stock. Thirdly, because we buy all our goods for cash, and consequently get our goods cheaper than parties who buy on credit. We give our customers the benefit of the discounts made by cash purchases and all this together enables us to consistently keep up the reputation of the BARGAIN STORE.

N. B. Our goods are always fresh, as our drayage man takes them directly from the cars and at once delivers them at our store.

Very respectfully,
D. S. KAUFFMAN & Co.

OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN OBSERVES—

That the brick work on the new Evangelical church is getting along nicely.

That our campmeeting ought not to have been a failure.

That every democrat in the county should stand by the decision of the convention and vote the straight democratic ticket from county auditor to president.

That with the present disaffection in Republican circles, the Democrats with a strong, united effort can place the Keystone state within their ranks.

That the foul lie, started by the Republicans about Grover Cleveland, has recoiled on its infamous authors and will make him stronger than ever in his native state.

That the would-be president Widow Butler is nothing but a blatant demagogue.

That death had visited many families in this vicinity within the past few weeks.

That coming events cast their shadows before" and that the earthquake on Sunday in the east was only a shadow of the one that will on the 4th of November shake up the Republican party of this country.

That fishing excursions in the seven mountains are not very profitable. Referred to F. P. Musser.

That our town should now have a Cleveland and Hendricks Club.

That Frank Henderson, of Watkins, N. Y., placed his cognomen on the Millheim hotel register last Friday.

That the editor of the Centre Reporter must have been wrongly informed about the death of Mr. Samuel Gardner, recently. The truth is, he was twenty-four years of age, died at Madisonburg and from hemorrhage of the lungs.

That in his opinion in the Kansas election—St. John against the demijohn ---the demijohn will win.

—At a meeting of the General Council of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Aaronsburg charge, held in the St. John's Lutheran Church at Millheim, Aug. 9th, A. D. 1884, the following resolutions were presented by Bro. W. F. Stover and unainmously adopted:

WHEREAS, our much esteemed pastor Rev. Bro. John Tomlinson saw fit through the providence of God to hand to the Church Council his resignation as pastor of the Aaronsburg charge,

Therefor be it resolved, that it is with deep regret that we received his resignation; that during his pastorate of ten years and five months in our midst the relation between members and pastor were of the most social and friendly character; and that we take great pleasure in having the opportunity to express our highest appreciation of his conduct as a citizen, and christian character as a preacher of the Gospel while in our midst.

Therefor we can most cheerfully testify to his great worth as a faithful minister in God's vineyard, and while we deeply feel our loss, the brothers and sisters of his new charge receive a great gain.

Resolved that the above resolutions be recorded in our minute book, and a copy of the same sent to the Lutheran Observer and Millheim Journal for publication. H. E. DUCK, Sec. G. C.

How Uncle Abe, of Alabama, Recovered his Pullet.

'De circumventions and de circumambertations of dis here prisint generation am pas my comprehensions,' exclaimed old Abe as he entered his cabin and held up for inspection a chicken partly denuded of its feathers.

'Call dem wurds ober agin, daddie,' said young Jake, throwing his hand behind his ear as if very suddenly afflicted with deafness.

'Whar's yer larning, boy?' testily replied the old man. 'You'se dun bin tending dat skule dese pas two years and it pears like as how you aint larnt nuting but ill manners, you young varmint.'

'Woll, dad,' cooly retorted the youngster, 'I is de brag scholar of dat skule, but it strikes me dat dem jawmashers what you just mentioned aint no whar in my dicturnary, but you was eddicated long afore I was born and dem words may be fus-class spressions, so taint no use to take a feller up so shortlike.'

'Hole yer tongue, Jake,' commanded old Rachel, 'and let your daddie tell us how he dun got 'session of dat pullet what dun been gone dese hull two days.'

'Wall,' began the old man, 'I hab my 'spicions 'bout dis here chicken, but I aint say much. I jis' lie low and watch de case. Tinks I, Brudder Dick bin a powerful han' on de stealing question, and I don't see as how his 'ligion dun prove him any, so I jis' keep my eye on his motions. Jis' now, as I was passing his house, I hear a mighty singing and patting ob de feet, like Brudder Dick feel monstrous happy. Den I peeps fro' de crack and dar, bress God, I seed de old sinner jes' a taring de feders outen dat pullet. Den I walked back a few steps and sot up a singing too; and when I gets to his house I hollers out: 'Brudder Dick, is you dar?'

'Den he answers up, skeert-like, 'Is'e here, Brudder Abe. What's yer pledger?'

'I'se cuming in to sit awhile,' says I, and I shuffles about like dere is a powerful site o' mud on my feet, kase I was boun' fer' to hab a leetle fun, and I wanted to gib de old man time to hide de pullet.

'When I goes in, Brudder Dick was jes'a shoven a basket of fedders under de bed. 'Hab a cheer, brudder,' says he, powerful perlite, 'I'se sure glad fur to see yer. Bring dat cheer hegher to de fiah.'

'Den we talks and talks, and while I was looking aroun' I sees a piece ob dat pullet a sticking outer his pocket.' 'Brudder Dick,' says I, 'dus you carry a rabit foot for good luck?' And I gin a grab fur de chicken; but no, bress de Lord, de old man too peart fur me and he holler out: 'Don't tech my rabbit foot, kase you spile all my luck!'

' 'Dat's de truff,' says I; 'den I sot to thinking how I was gwine to git dat pullet outen dat pocket.

'Arter awhile says I; 'Brudder Dick, I'se dun loose dat fine Plymoth Rock pullet what I sot so much store by.'

'You ain't tell me so he,' he 'plies, innercent like as a dove; ,how dat dun happen, brudder?'

'I can't in no wise tell,' says I, 'but I bress de niggah what eats dat chicken, kase I dun put de ebil spell on it, and it is conjured clar to de backbone. I is shure seen dat pullet afore now stan' on its head and walk on its tail.'

'You ain't say so,' he 'claims, and his eyes look like dey wus gwine to pop outen his head, an I see him hitch back his coat like he was skeert fur de pocket to touch him. Tinks I, old man, you'se all right now, and I tells him goad night and leabs.

'Den I hides ahind a tree fur to see what he gwine fur to do next,' and bimeby he cums to de door and peep out, he ain't seen nobody and he gin a run and flung de chicken inter my yard. Den I hear him say to hisself: 'If dat dere chicken is conjured I is dun fixed up old Abe's dog, kase Cash is boun' fur to eat it afore mornin.' Den he slips in de house and I gits to dat pullet in a hurry, and here it is now ready fur de cooking, old 'oman. Ha! ha! ha!' laughed the negro, 'I is cunning as a coon; it is hard to kotch up wid dis niggah.'

'You're right dar,' acquiesced his wife, while young Jake, with a knowing grin, quietly asked: 'Daddie, ain't dis here de little speckled chicken you made me run down and kotch dat Sunday Miss Amy and de boss dun been go to church?

'Hole your tongue, you meddlesome young rascal, you is so chock full of bigotness and circumwentions you is mighty nigh unsportable. Dese here children what am dun brung up since slabery times is gotten clar outen my comperhension'

'I is kotch up wid de facts of dis ting, muttered old Dick, who had slipped in the yard to see what effect the conjured pullet would have on Cash. He hearing the old man talking, had peeped through the crack and seen how cunningly he had been cheated out of his chicken supper.

'I'll git eben wid de ole coon yit, he mentally ejaculated, and spying a stray chicken rooster near, he dextrously transferred it to his capacious pocket without any outcry from the feathery prisoner, and he gleefully chuckled as he reflected, 'Dat when it come to a pinch he reckon dat black coicken was mighty nigh as good as de Plymouth Rock pullet.

There are hard times ahead for Prohibitionists. Sooner or later we shall be obliged to slack our thirst with beer, mintjuleps, milk-punch, and other cooling beverages, instead of the water with which we now irrigate our systems. Professor Proctor says the earth is gradually cooling off, very much as the enthusiasm for Blaine is beginning to loose some of its latent heat. The professor says that in about 15,000,000 years every trace of water will have disappeared from the surface of the earth.

"It is ground-hog day again, I see," remarked the red-headed boarder, casting his eye over the breakfast table. "Why, no it isn't," contradicted a fly telegraph operator. "Then what is that sausage doing there?" rejoined the red-headed boarder.

DOWNS' ELIXIR.

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR

For the cure of

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.

DR. JOHN BULL'S

Smith's Tonic Syrup

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER,

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and Scrofulous affections—the King of Blood Purifiers.

DR. JOHN BULL'S VEGETABLE WORM DESTROYER is prepared in the form of candy drops, attractive to the sight and pleasant to the taste.
